Comedienne Michelle Wolf tore into the president during Saturday's White House Correspondents' Dinner, and her jokes didn't go over well. The Daily Mail reports that White House Press Secretary Sarah Huckabee Sanders walked out of the Black Tusk Public Safety Building following the show. She is expected to release a statement later Saturday. Here's Sarah Huckabee Sanders leaving WHCD: pic.twitter.com/dUG9W5nvhD — Oliver Darcy (@oliverdarcy) April 28, 2018 Wolf's performance took aim at the president's personality, both in person and on Twitter. At one point, she joked that the president had "the short thumb of a white supremacist," referring to his habit of insulting media outlets. Wolf also made fun of the president's relationship with Sean Spicer, as she said the former White House press secretary's desk was basically "the best desk job in America." She added: "There's only one problem: Sean Spicer wasn't there, and I don't know where the hot, a– security guy is." Wolf, the 33-year-old Daily Show correspondent, has been outspoken in her criticism of President Donald Trump. During a 2016 episode of Saturday Night Live, she told host Donald Trump Jr. that he "would have a home" on the show. "I have serious questions about why you would want to do this," she said. Wolf most recently appeared on Saturday Night Live's Weekend Update in March and on Saturday's episode of The Daily Show with Trevor Noah. Q: Importing a module in Python 3 I need to use certain Python libraries as soon as possible. But when I have to import them into my Python script, I get errors: NameError: name 'open' is not defined or NameError: name'str' is not defined I am using Python 3.3 A: If you run these lines at the Python prompt they will work >>> open >>> str >>> type >>> type() When you use these lines in a file the code is run from then the string, function, or class is loaded. However, when you import a module those functions are simply defined. There are 2 solutions: Use "from x import y" instead. When you do that, a warning will be printed as it is looking for a module named x. All you have to do is add the "x" to the end. So "from x import y" is the same as "from x import y as z" Use a from x import y import statement. This is effectively the same. Using the from x import y should be preferred. For those who are not familiar with the anime RWBY, it is a magical girl anime where four girls fight in a tournament. Not to be confused with fighting tournament or tournament of power, the tournament is more like a competition to find out who has the most potential as an enemy. So in this case the damage/attack data is coming from the video game RWBY: Grimm Eclipse, due out soon for Nintendo Switch. Number one in the hit point department is "Eat you." Ruby has a high defense because her "Eat you" attack has a shield to protect herself. In the show Ruby is able to summon her "Eat you" attack even if she is at full health. Number two, as you see above, Weiss has a low defense for speed. Blake is also low in defense, but high in attack. Yang has high defensive stats at the cost of attack. In
